

THIS WEEK: A change in store for one payment option, the power of spare change, and how a text alert can change energy usage, and more...

VOL. 41- Feb. 15, 2017

THE CALL

A BIWEEKLY PUBLICATION OF ROANOKE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

SPECIAL NOTICE

New rules for credit card payments

In an effort to ensure the safe handling of cardholder information, Roanoke Electric Co-op will no longer be able to accept credit card payments at its cash register beginning March 1, 2017. This change is being implemented in compliance with industry standards required to reduce the risk of payment data theft.

PENNY POWER

This is what happens when change adds up

Change is good, especially the spare change you contribute by participating in Operation Roundup. With the contributions you made by rounding up your monthly electric bill, the co-op recently donated more than $3,000 to charitable causes, including much-needed protective clothing and gear for a local volunteer fire department. ## REC SOLUTIONS

How a text alert can help save money

Did you know you can set up an alert on your mobile device that indicates if you surpassed a set amount of energy usage on a given day? Imagine how much money you might save by being able to better monitor your energy consumption. The benefits of this technology, brought to you by Roanoke Electric Co-op, is now right at your fingertips. Check it out

FROM THE HEART

What's love really got to do with it?

You may not typically think of your local electric co-op on Valentine's Day, but we are sure thinking of you, each and every day. For Roanoke Electric Co-op, serving our member-owners and this community is a true labor of love. Read more.
